Savannah, masters of ceremonies, Bishop Donohue and Bishop Haid were present in the sanctuary, with twenty-seven visiting priests from the dioceses of Virginia, Savannah, Ga., and Baltimore Admission to the cathedral was by ticket only, and the number so admitted was limited to the seating capacity. The Mc-Gill Catholic Union had charge of the interior arrangements, and the members of the St. Vincent de Paul Society constitut ed the guard of honor.

The ceremonies began at 10:30 o'clock, when the procession, which had been formed in the sacristy of the cathedral, passed through the grounds of the episcopal residence and entered by the south door. An immense crowd had gathered to watch the procession pass, and so great was the interest manifested in the event that hundreds of people stood without the cathedral during the progress of the cere-

It lasted for nearly three hours and a half, but there was no sign fatigue in the vast congregation, Haydn's Second Mass was sung by the choir of the cathedral, augmented for the occasion by the addition of some of the most prom-inent vocalists in Virginia, accompanied by the organ and full orchestra, under the direction of Col. C. O'B. Cowardin, editor of the Richmond Dispatch.
This is the fourth consecration that has occurred in the Cathedral Church in Virginia, and unusual interest was manifested in it because the bishop-elect is himself a Virginian, personally well known in this community, and one of a very few sons of the Old Dominion who has Catholic Church.
